Tweelectron is a unofficial TweetDeck client for the Mac that allows you to manage multiple Twitter accounts, even when you are behind a firewall. Tweelectron does not require installation and it works without any need for admin permissions. Tweelectron shows the most recent tweet of the active account, and you can easily switch between multiple accounts or add new ones. Please note: Tweelectron connects through Tor, which adds an extra delay to your connection. You can change Tweelectron's settings (including proxy information) through Tweelectron's settings.json file. "N" will add characters to the beginning of the message while "R" will replace characters in the message. For an explanation of what these functions do, please see the documentation. macros: ----- The macros are located in the file /users/user-data/macros.json and are organized in a nested structure.
