Least upper bound property on a poset In a poset is any least upper bound also an upper bound? A: The standard statement of the least upper bound property is that every nonempty subset of a partially ordered set has a least upper bound, which is unique if it exists. One way to say this is that the set $\{(x,y) \in X \times Y \mid x \leq y\}$ is a directed set. This follows from the fact that the mapping f from X to itself defined by $f(x) = (x,x)$ is a monotone increasing mapping and thus a bijection. To see that it is monotone increasing, note that the pair $(x,y) \leq$ (x',y) if and only if $x \leq x'$ and $y \geq y'$. This shows that the set X has a subset S of the form $f(X)$. But since the latter is also a subset of $X \times Y$, by definition of the mapping f , it follows that S is a subset of the set $X \times$ Y . As for the question in your title, I am pretty sure the answer is "no", not "yes
