Poll: Americans want some red ink to fix economy More than two-thirds say cutting taxes is the most important strategy to jumpstart the economy and create jobs. Story Continued Below Among the individual proposals — from those who were polled and asked to choose only one as the best — majorities say debt reduction, cutting special interest tax breaks and reforming health care are the most important ones to save the economy. On the list, just short of one-third cited a combination of boosting infrastructure spending and tax breaks for businesses. These conclusions are drawn from a new national Pew Research Center survey of 1,505 adults conducted between Aug. 23-Sept. 1. Among other findings: * A substantial majority of Americans — 72 percent — do not want to raise taxes on anyone, and want to cut taxes for individuals and businesses. Even among Republicans, the percentage who say they want to cut taxes is at 50 percent, and there is a big drop-off in support from that among Democrats. * Though most say their top concern is the economy, only 27 percent say they think President Obama has led the United States through a difficult time. Among Democrats, only 36 percent say they have confidence in the president's performance as president. * Asked what the top issue should be for the next Congress, 61 percent say the economy, while 28 percent say unemployment/jobs. * Americans polled have largely said little about the deficit, except to say they want it reduced. But most Democrats (71 percent) do not trust the Republicans to work with Obama on how to reduce the deficit. Republicans trust Obama to work with them on it more than Democrats do (48 percent).SEOUL, South Korea — The United States and South Korea launched joint naval drills involving hundreds of aircraft and vessels on Tuesday on the southernmost tip of the Korean Peninsula, highlighting their efforts to keep a tense military crisis in the region from escalating into war. No shots were fired and there were no initial signs that anything untoward had occurred as the combined forces and their allies traded mock artillery strikes during "Dawn Blitz," an annual South Korean-U.S. exercise that includes live ammunition. It will last until Friday, with the only potential departure point of the exercise a press briefing scheduled for Wednesday morning. As the allied naval forces began conducting a nighttime training exercise in waters off the disputed Sea of Japan, they served as a show of strength to the North — a country that

* To use the Clone Stamp tool: Select it from the Toolbox and click the desired area in the image, or use a drawing tool (see the next section) to create a path. When you select the location to make the cut, you can drag the selected area. To remove the selected area, drag it to the blue . This action unselects the area and removes it from the document. Click the OK button to confirm the deletion. * You can also edit an area of the image by using the Pen tool. Click the Pen icon from the Tools panel (refer to Figure 6-17), then click the image to create a selection, and then click the area you want to edit. The Pen works like a brush, and you use it to add or subtract pixels. You can edit pixels by doing one of the following: * Drag the Pen to the left to erase pixels, or to the right to add pixels. * Click and drag a pixel to paint it, then click the pixel's upper-right corner to add or subtract pixels from it. The difference is represented in pixels. * To unlock the Pen for editing, hold down the Pen icon on the Tools panel. * See the box at the end of this section for more information about the Pen tool. * If you want to use both the Pen and the Clone Stamp tools, select the location of the cut by using the Pen tool, then select the Clone Stamp tool and click the location of the cut. You now have a path to copy. 2. **Click the Pat button on the Tools panel**. The Pat dialog box opens (Figure 6-21), where you can enter your path. Just like with the Pen tool, you can click and drag to create paths. This path is copied to the current image. 3. **Click OK**. The stamped area now shows the path. Use the Pen tool to paint over the path or in combination with the Clone Stamp to fill in the stamped area. 4. **Click the red in the Tools panel**. This puts the editing tools back in their original context, under the Brush tool. 5. **Click the Brush tool**. You see the Brush tool in the foreground. That's the setting for brushes.
