'I wish 30 degrees no more': Kashmir schoolgirl ruins paintings after being rejected by college india Updated: May 25, 2020 16:48 IST A Kashmir schoolgirl landed in trouble after she carried out a "Tulcheroo" on the paintings in her school. While her principal expelled her, she also expressed her wishes that her paintings fall on the floor and be 30 degrees a day. The incident happened when the school principal, Hafiz Qayum, rejected 11 paintings of Nimra, a Class-12 student from government school in Srinagar's Dal Lake area. "The former principal was passing the paintings on Thursday and there was a lot of agitation when one of the paintings was announced as the best. The principal took out Nimra's painting and said it was the best among the students. The students were taken aback by the rejection of the painting," Nimra's father, Mohd Abdullah, said. Abdullah said the paintings were the creation of his daughter. "Nimra shares her paintings with me whenever she gets a chance. I value the paintings and suggested that she tell her principal I will handover the painting to him. The principal called both of them and Nimra told him that when he wanted to handover the painting to me, she was scolded," Abdullah said. Nimra's family showed her the photograph of the painting and explained that the principal wanted it to be returned on Friday. "But, after we told him that the paintings can be presented only through the principal, he said we have rejected her paintings," the father said. Haroon, a driver, said he too took part in the protest. "Today, I'll write to the State's Chief Secretary, on Nimra's behalf," he said. General Information Reviews Overall the game looks and sounds great, and the management of outposts and space stations are a lot more fun than in other games in the same price range. The combat is fun and tactical, the plot-line is interesting, and the co-op is awesome. The game is a bit of a mixed bag, but it definitely has its merits. 5/5- Game Refuge On Steam you can buy it for $24.99, but if you look around you'll find it for about $11.00-$12.00. If you are a fan of tower defense or the Sims franchise this game is a must-buy.

The Princely Hooligan Heritage As Leicester's bull fighting and drunken dancing days come to an end the gang of us involved in the hooligan past wants to provide a glimpse at the people, places and rowdy hijinks that went on in our time. The Double Treble team would like to thank everyone who provided their assistance. This also includes everyone mentioned and those too small to be named. We particularly look forward to reading what YOU have got to say. We have got ourselves all settled. Going over our notes, taking it all in. It was surprising to realise just how much stuff our time holds and once again we are met with new information and facts to add to an already well documented story line. We hope you enjoyed the journey and hopefully now we can move on to the next century.

When asked how he started hooliganism, Andy replied with a simple 'It was an accident really, an act of madness. But, given he was a kid - and a short one at that - I suppose it was inevitable that there would be some form of hooliganism by him at some point in his life. He was a bit of an enigma. An enigma on and off the pitch! Although the Mancini family claims that he was never involved in hooliganism, the official biography of Joey Mancini by Peter Davies states that he was well known for associating with an outfit of hooligans who went by the name of Queen's Rangers. As the story goes on: One of Joey's best friends was a lad called Frank Baker who was also known to his pals as Sailor. Sailor was the
