Note "Proofs" are the strips of exposed (visible) film that, in earlier days, marked the progress of a roll of film through a camera and into the photo processor to develop. These days, images often undergo a desktop development. ## Camera Menu In your camera, it's possible to set things like exposure mode (light, which makes a brighter image, or dark, which makes a darker image), shutter speed (how long the shutter stays open

Fisheyes On ISIS's Public Image : Western Conspiracies: No More Fake News "I am sick to death of all the lies, in particular the fake news," the director of Documentary, "Western Conspiracies: No More Fake News", Vito Relluto says in his introduction to his film. Vito Relluto sets out to prove the average foreign media has little interest in the ISIS crisis and has been corrupted by Western powers to portray the situation a certain way. "What I do know is that there are countless thousands of refugees, including women and children," he says, "and that there is a massive humanitarian catastrophe taking place on a daily basis." Numerous filmmakers and researchers, including respected journalists, have addressed the fake news problem in recent months. After the movie, Relluto sat down for a photo with us and answered questions. Read on for part 1 of his interview.

How would you describe your film? It's a documentary about Western media's reporting on the global jihad. It's about different aspects of that, like, what's happening in Iraq, Syria, Libya, and other areas and how that affects the media and Western governments. Have you seen some similar, or at least comparable, films? What works and what doesn't? I did watch a documentary called The Power of Nightmares (2008) by Adam Curtis, which was made with the BBC at the time, and it's about the same thing, so I'm not the only one who feels that Western media are not really interested in truth. I felt that documentaries on the global jihad being produced recently, since Charlie Hebdo (2015), were very, very limited, because we didn't find a producer or a filmmaker that wanted to produce a very deep and comprehensive film because it's very, very difficult to find a place to put the emphasis on this, because it's not something you can really hear people saying on the radio, and at the moment, it's very difficult to find that audience. It's not that Western media are covering up the truth and then pretending that they are. The truth is that they are ignoring the issue. I think we have to be careful what we call "the truth" because it could easily be completely different from what is being presented on their TV screens and what'

Q: How to run the docker application in my local machine? I have created the docker image of my flask web app. The image is successful to build. But I am not able to run the docker images in the local machine. The reason behind this is that I am using docker compose. so it was suggested that we should not use docker run command. Instead of using it, we should use docker-compose up command. I have used the command which I got in the #docker IRC channel. So I have tried the following: 1. dockr.local:8000 2. "localhost:8000" But didn't work. Please help me out. I am using following docker-compose.yml file for the same. version: '2' services: app: image: app_image:latest environment: - SESSION_TYPE=redis depends_on: - redis command: python app.py A: You have to run the image in your local machine. After building it, you have to run it. You can find detailed steps here: docker-compose up will start the containers and talk them to each other, but doesn't run the application inside those containers. Q: Add localhost to proxy pass I have a Jenkins server running in a docker container. When the Jenkins server starts up it needs to talk to my other services in the same docker network. I am attempting to do this using a proxy pass. proxy_pass Which gives me the following error : javax.servlet.ServletException: A proxy error: Error proxying request /, received "error reading HTTP response post:
